

ROSEMAN UNIVERSITY
NEIGHBORHOOD HEALTH SERIES

Where Do Tomorrow's Doctors Come From?

The Medical Education Process That Trains Them

Thursday, February 16, 2017 | 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Roseman University Summerlin Campus | One Breakthrough Way, Las Vegas, NV 89135

Light dinner provided.

Stephanie Wragg, B.Sc., M.Sc., M.S., Ph.D.
*Assistant Dean for Curriculum and Assessment/
Associate Professor of Biomedical Sciences*

Becoming a doctor involves many years of education and training. We all know someone who aspires to medical school, or is currently enrolled in a program. Do we really know what it means to be in medical school? Why does it take so long and what do students actually do all day? Dr. Wragg will address current trends in medical education, its current structure and future directions.

2017
Presenting Sponsor

Register at speakers.roseman.edu or by calling 702-802-2872

Upcoming Neighborhood Health Series Events

Thursday, March 16
5:30 – 7 p.m.

Allergies and Immune Response

Thursday, April 20
5:30 – 7 p.m.

Surviving Oral Cancer

roseman.edu | @rosemanuhs