

For more than 70 years, Central One Federal Credit Union has been trusted by members to help safely and securely manage their financial well-being and safeguard their deposits. This trust is something we honor every day by prudently managing Central One. Our organization is financially strong, and members have deposit insurance through the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA).

As you may know recently, the FDIC and others have taken emergency action to stabilize some financial institutions. The current challenges seen by some large banks has no effect on Central One. Central One withstood the economic stresses of 2008 and thrived by doing what we do best, serving our members with products and services designed to help them and our communities. As always, you can count on us to continue supporting and serving you and our communities. We are proud of the team at Central One and the systems and controls we have in place to weather any storm.

At Central One, we put you at the center of everything we do. We are proud of earning your trust and being your financial institution of choice. As we have said before, and it bears repeating now, we are not a bank, we are better. Thank you for your trust.
